GNCS Donates to Island Harvest

Great Neck Community School families remember those less fortunate than themselves during the holidays. They collected nearly 300 pounds of non-perishable goods which were donated to Island Harvest at the start of the month. The children, each day, deposited items brought from home and were proud of their accomplishment as the boxes filled. In closing out the month, the school is working with Town of North Hempstead Councilwoman Maria-Christina "Kitty" Poons to bring boxes of needed supplies and food to seven families from Great Neck who find themselves down on their luck. The school staff came together recently to share a meal in celebration of each other. They continued the long-standing tradition at Great Neck Community School of giving each other a child's toy that would represent that individual. As each gift was unwrapped the staff tried to guess who it fits best, causing much laughter. At the end of the night the toys were contributed to the Great Neck Alert Fire Department who delivered them to deserving children living in the area.
